READERCON 30
July 11–14, 2019
Quincy, Massachusetts

Guests of Honor

Guest of Honor
Tananarive Due

Guest of Honor
Stephen Graham Jones

Memorial Guest of Honor
Edward Bryant

And celebrating the 2018 Cordwainer Smith Award winner:
Frank M. Robinson

VOLUNTEER AT CON AND EARN EXCLUSIVE READERCON STUFF!

Readercon is entirely volunteer-run. Our volunteers help with Registration and Information, keep an eye on the programming, staff the Con Suite, and do about a million more things both before and during the con. If interested, go to Information—the person there will gladly assist you. You can volunteer at con, or join our staff to help with next year!

Tote bag is for illustration only; current volunteer rewards may differ.
PROGRAM GUIDE

Unless otherwise noted, all items fill a 60-minute program slot, except for readings, which fill a 30-minute slot. All items begin 5 minutes after and end 5 minutes before the times given. Participants and attendees are urged to arrive as promptly as possible. Bold panelists are leaders/moderators.

Please note that the final schedule may have changed since this guide was printed. Please check the program grid or the online listing for the most up-to-date information. See readercon.org/program

We will be providing communication access real-time translation (CART) support for some Saturday afternoon and evening program items, including the Guest of Honor interviews. These are marked in the guide with CART after the title.

Salon 3 and Salon 4 are the only rooms with microphones.

A kafeeklatsch is a low-key chat hosted by a program participant for up to 12 people, held in the 9th floor Concierge Lounge. Seats are limited, so you must sign up ahead of time at the Info Desk.

If you need some recharge time, please visit the Quiet Room on the second floor.

Use #readercon to livetweet program items and connect with other congoers on social media.

An index by participant is at the back of this booklet.

CONTENTS

Thursday..................2
Friday.....................3
Saturday..................17
Sunday...................30
Index.....................38
Map.....................42
THURSDAY

FREE TO THE PUBLIC

8:00 PM
1. Salon A • Afrofuturism and Solarpunk in Dialogue • Rob Cameron, Bill Campbell, Michael J. DeLuca, Tananarive Due, Cadwell Turnbull
Afrofuturism: an African-American creative movement that reimagines the past, present, and future. Solarpunk: subverting the cyberpunk future, it explores sustainable solutions to global environmental crisis. Both have a strong “maker” tradition and are, at their core, hopeful. Panelists will brain-storm converging issues, technologies, and ideas that would make for compelling solarpunk Afrofuturist stories.

2. Salon B • Being Vague to Make Space for Horror • Stephen Graham Jones, Darcie Little Badger, Sonya Taaffe, teri.zin, Paul Tremblay
In a 2016 blog post, Peter MacDonald argued that many creepypasta stories—unsettling urban legends that have been copied and pasted around the Internet—undermine their effectiveness as works of horror by providing overly concrete answers in the final stretch. Panelists will discuss whether this can be generalized to other horror stories—ones that less obviously blur the line between fiction and reality—and consider the importance to horror of ambiguity around the fantastic and supernatural.

3. Salon C • Reading: Alexander Jablokov
4. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Kathy Kitts

8:30 PM
5. Salon C • Reading: Gemma Files
6. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: John Wiswell

9:00 PM
7. Salon A • Killing Characters 101 • Mike Allen, Charles Allison, Karen Heuler, Miriam Newman, Robert V. S. Redick
The decision to kill a character is fraught (as it should be) and often tied to thematic elements, audience expectations of genre, and concerns around
Panelists will deconstruct stories that handle these issues well or poorly, and discuss their own challenges in making characters’ deaths as meaningful as their lives.

8. Salon B • Obvious to Experts, Obscure to Everyone Else • Anatoly Belilovsky, Judith Berman, Kate Nepveu, David G. Shaw, Tamara Vardomskaya
When an expert says something is “intuitively obvious,” it’s very likely that the average person will be unable to understand. How languages work, how probabilities are calculated, and how eyes see are all examples of counter-intuitive concepts. This panel of experts will bring illustrative examples and explain them for laypeople.

9. Salon C • Reading: Arkady Martine

10. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Austin Grossman

9:30 PM
11. Salon C • Reading: John Langan

12. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Lauren Roy

---

FRIDAY

Registration: 10 AM to 9 PM (Wollaston)
Information: 10 AM to 9 PM (Ballroom lobby)
Con Suite: 10 AM to midnight (Room 863)
Bookshop: 3 PM to 7 PM (Salons 5 and 6)

11:00 AM
13. Salon 3 • Cultural Hauntings and African-American History • Bill Campbell, Tananarive Due, L. Penelope, Faye Ringel, teri.zin
Some of GOH Tananarive Due’s work, including Joplin’s Ghost, The Between, and The Good House, recovers African-American history through tales of the supernatural. She has written, “Sometimes fiction is the only way to make sense of the insensible.” Panelists will explore these and other tales that use the power of the supernatural to engage with the horrors and struggles of Black Americans past and present.
14. Salon 4 • The 21st-Century Makeover of Class Struggle in SF/F •
Malka Older, Sarah Smith, Cadwell Turnbull, Catherynne M. Valente,
T.X. Watson
With rising economic inequality and class struggle ever more visible in America, how are these issues being explored in SF/F? Is the pessimism of YA dystopias (from Suzanne Collins’s The Hunger Games, published at the start of the Great Recession, to M.T. Anderson’s Landscape with Invisible Hand in 2017) emblematic of changed views of the American Dream? How do recent works differ from their 20th-century forebears (Nancy Kress’s Beggars in Spain), and how are they tackling the intersection of class and other identities?

15. Salon A • “You Will Believe a Plant Can Walk!” • Eric Schaller
Anthropomorphic botanical creatures repeatedly appear in folklore and the literature of the fantastic. These include the vampiric Jubokko tree, the Ents from The Lord of the Rings, the Triffids from Day of the Triffids, Groot from Marvel Comics, and Swamp Thing from DC. Eric Schaller will explore how actual botanical mechanisms might be coopted to allow for sight, touch, speech, movement, and thought—with a special focus on Swamp Thing, who is perhaps the most human-like of all these botanical creatures.

16. Salon B • Becoming Active Bystanders
A bystander is a person who observes unacceptable behavior. It might be something serious or minor, one-time or repeated, but the bystander knows that the behavior is unacceptable or likely to make a bad situation worse. An active bystander takes steps that can make a positive difference in that situation. This workshop covers the basics of active bystander action and strategies, with opportunity for discussion and practice. Training provided by the Boston Area Rape Crisis Center.

17. Salon C • Reading: Sherwood Smith
18. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Mimi Mondal
19. Abigail Adams • Picture Book Storytime for All Ages (Friday)
   All ages are welcome for an hour of picture book storytime.

11:30 AM
20. Salon C • Reading: Inanna Arthen
21. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Andrea Martinez Corbin
22. Salon 3 • Old Punks Read New -Punks • Christopher Brown, F. Brett Cox, Elizabeth Hand, Sioban Krzywicki, Victoria Sandbrook
Punk is dad—er, dead. Every year new -punks proliferate: Mannerpunk! Gutterpunk! Solarpunk! Hopepunk! Jitterpunk! Sugarpunk! Rentpunk! Has punk exhausted itself to mere gesture, aesthetic, and marketing copy, or can -punk still kick against the pricks? A panel of self-defined crusty old punks will take a stab at it.

23. Salon 4 • Writing Craft and Mentoring Programs • Jack Dann, Theodora Goss, Kate Maruyama, Kenneth Schneyer, Holly Walrath
Those who want to learn the craft of writing popular genre fiction have more options than ever. MFA programs and workshops of excellent repute are popping up all over the U.S., from Stonecoast in Maine to Clarion in California, as well as in other parts of the world. With so many options, how does one choose? Panelists who have participated in these programs as mentors or mentees will discuss their experiences.

In her essay “Decolonizing the Imagination,” published in Horn Book Magazine and on their website, Zetta Elliott wrote of the challenge in crafting portal fantasies and time travel stories that partook as much of her heritage as of the colonial literature she grew up reading as a mixed-race girl in Canada. This discussion will consider the questions raised by her essay, including, «Can time and space be shaped by an author to satisfy needs left unfulfilled by an unjust reality?»

25. Salon C • Broad Universe Rapid Fire Reading

26. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Steve Berman

27. Abigail Adams • Fountain Pen Test Drive
If you like fountain pens or are just curious, come play! Bring whatever pens, ink, and paper you have. We’ll do a show and tell, and try out each other’s favorites. No supplies will be provided; newcomers to the world of fountain pens are encouraged to bring a notebook or pad to test pens on.
28. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Martin Cahill

29. Salon 3 • The Real Middle Ages, Part 1: Europe • Charles Allison, Robert Killheffer, Chelsea R. Miller, Jess Nevins, Faye Ringel

   Medieval Europe was a hotbed of interaction among people of different cultures and ethnicities, so there’s no reason for fantasy novels with medieval-like settings to be blandly homogeneous. Panelists will discuss how popular narratives of medieval Europe misrepresent known history, how these narratives serve white supremacist movements, and how writers can do better by readers by basing their worldbuilding on Europe as it really was.

30. Salon 4 • Everfair, Black Panther, and Visions of Uncolonized Africa • Rob Cameron, Phenderson Djèlí Clark, Mary Anne Mohanraj, Nikhil Singh

   In Marvel’s Black Panther comics and film, Wakanda is a fictional country in Africa that was never colonized and is technologically advanced. In Nisi Shawl’s Everfair, the Congolese develop steam technology before the invading Belgians do. How do these and other depictions of empowered African nations, such as Nicky Drayden’s Temper, provide aspirational frameworks, visions of the future, and launching points for discussions of imperialism?

31. Salon A • The Works and Life of Edward Bryant • Chuck Anderson, Tananarive Due, Jean-Philippe Gervais, Jim LeMay, Howard Waldrop

   Ed Bryant (1945–2017) was an author of horror and science fiction. He wrote half a dozen novels and more than 70 short stories. Bryant received both a B.A. and an M.A. in English from the University of Wyoming. In 1968 he attended the Clarion Workshop and started writing professionally, quickly gathering Nebula Award nominations, and, in 1979, his first win for his short story “Stone.” Bryant worked in both film and television, including adapting his own writing for The Twilight Zone. In the early 1970s Bryant moved to Denver. There, he founded the Northern Colorado Writers Conference and went on to teach at Clarion, the Colorado Language Arts Society, the Colorado Mountain College Summer Writers’ Workshop, and countless others. Join us to celebrate the life and work of this inspiring author and fan.
32. Salon B • Classic Nonfiction Essay Club: “Estrangement and Cognition” by Darko Suvin • Meg Elison, Tom Greene, Alexander Jablokov, Marissa Lingen, Graham Sleight

Darko Suvin’s preferred edition of his essay “Estrangement and Cognition,” coining the oft-repeated statement that SF is the literature of cognitive estrangement, first appeared in 1979. (Strange Horizons later reprinted it online.) It was a decade in the making, and the world and SF both changed quite a bit from 1969 to 1979. We’ll consider «Estrangement and Cognition» in the context of SF’s New Wave, the political upheavals of the 1960s and ’70s, and the subsequent shifts in speculative genres.

33. Salon C • Group Reading: Echoes: The Saga Anthology of Ghost Stories • Ellen Datlow, Gemma Files, Jeffrey Ford, Stephen Graham Jones, John Langan, Paul Tremblay

Contributors to the forthcoming anthology Echoes: The Saga Anthology of Ghost Stories, edited by Ellen Datlow, will read from their work.

34. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Vylar Kaftan

35. Abigail Adams • Fiber Arts Show and Tell

This informal meetup is for fiber artists from beginner to expert as well as curious learners. Show off a finished work or a favorite set of tools. Seek help, encouragement, or validation for a work in progress. Check out other people’s creations for information and inspiration, or simply enjoy some time crafting in congenial company.

1:30 PM

36. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Sarah Smith

2:00 PM

37. Salon 3 • Accelerated Publication for Greater Relevance • Lisa (LJ) Cohen, Pablo Defendini, Liz Gorinsky, Yanni Kuznia, Bart Leib

When a book takes multiple years to go from conception to publication, its relevance may be diminished. How can publishing professionals work to accelerate the publication process and keep the subjects of publications as current as possible? What trade-offs are producers and consumers willing to make for the sake of speed? When is it important not to rush, and which corners shouldn’t be cut?
38. Salon 4 • Latinx Authors Tear Down the Wall • Lisa Bradley, Carlos Hernandez, José Pablo Iriarte, Julia Rios, Sabrina Vourvoulias

Isolationist governments portray immigrants (and citizens perceived as foreigners) as vectors for disease, crime, and terrorism. Currently, the U.S. administration is demonizing Latinx immigrants in this fashion, and oppressing asylum-seekers from Central America. How can authors dismantle anti-immigrant myths while portraying immigrants in all their human complexity? Led by Lisa M. Bradley, Latinx writers will discuss their work regarding borders and immigration, providing historical context and exploring possibilities for future stories.

39. Salon A • Narratives of Men Coming to Terms with Trauma • Inanna Arthen, Rob Cameron, Josh Jasper, Terence Taylor, John Wiswell

In the 2018 essay “Getting Men off Ledges,” Brandon O’Brien wrote, “We need to show men with trauma... working through it.” He provided examples of men whose abusive behavior is excused by their traumatic histories, saying, “We need to teach and remind men... that recovery means responsibility.” How can writers take on this burden of teaching and reminding? What do story arcs around traumatized men—including those who harm others—need to contain to be believable, non-exculpatory, and emotionally accessible for survivors?

40. Salon B • The Works of Frank M. Robinson • Robert Killheffer, Graham Sleight

Frank M. Robinson’s fascinating career included writing, editing, and writing speeches for Harvey Milk. After serving in the Navy during World War II he had his first published story in the June 1950 issue of Astounding Science Fiction Magazine, during his tour of duty in Korea. After returning home he wrote for men’s magazines Rogue and Cavalier before accepting a column at Playboy which ran from 1969–1973. He co-wrote several novels with Tom Scortia in the 1970s, the most famous being The Glass Inferno, filmed as The Towering Inferno. He was known for technothrillers and sharp, incisive writing. Robinson died in 2014 after serving on the board of The Trevor project, appearing alongside Sean Penn in Milk, and finishing his autobiography. Join our panelists to discuss the 2018 Cordwainer Award recipient’s life and work.

41. Salon C • Reading: Greer Gilman
42. Sylvanus Thayer • Memorial Guest of Honor Reading: Ellen Brody

Ellen Brody reads “The Road to Cinnabar” by Memorial Guest of Honor Edward Bryant.

43. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: David DeGraff, Navah Wolfe

2:30 PM

44. Salon C • Reading: Elizabeth Hand

45. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Zig Zag Claybourne

3:00 PM

46. Salon 3 • Rejection-Sensitive Dysphoria and Submitting Stories •

Jack Dann, Vylar Kaftan, Yanni Kuznia, Victoria Sandbrook, Terence Taylor

One of the less commonly known, but major, features of ADHD is rejection-sensitive dysphoria: a serious, disproportionate, and often debilitating emotional response to being turned down. Everyone who wants to write and be published needs to grow a thick skin to handle rejections, but RSD can make that much harder. Panelists will share their experiences with this challenge and provide tips and workarounds.

47. Salon 4 • The Horrors of Being Female •

Gillian Daniels, Gemma Files, Gwynne Garfinkle, Arkady Martine, Kate Maruyama, E.J. Stevens

Horror and dark fiction frequently reflect the everyday indignities and dehumanization of women living in patriarchal cultures—especially women who are also minorities. For example, GOH Tananarive Due writes about the fears of black women, while Caitlín R. Kiernan and Shirley Jackson depict the stigmatization of mentally ill women in ways both overt and subtle. How can authors find ways to describe the terrorizing of women without crossing over into objectification? What makes these works resonate with, and even empower, women readers?

48. Salon A • In Memoriam: Gene Wolfe •

John Clute, C.S.E. Cooney, Chris Gerwel, Elizabeth Hand, Howard Waldrop

Gene Wolfe (1931–2019) was Readercon’s first guest of honor, and for good reason. His Book of the New Sun series was not so much groundbreaking as earth-shattering; his short fiction equally displayed his virtuoso talent for unsettling and disorienting the reader. He dipped into numerous genres and refused to be bound by the conventions of any. Join us to remember our friend and colleague and to explore his extraordinary body of work.

49. Salon B • Am I Allowed?: Representation, Appropriation, and Anxiety • Zig Zag Claybourne, Sunny Moraine, Ian Muneshwar, Miriam Newman, Tracy Townsend

When writers learn about concerns around accurate representation and appropriation, they often react with anxiety, fearing that someone will tell them they’re not allowed to write beyond the bounds of their own experiences. Some seek out marginalized people and ask permission to tell particular stories. Others broadcast defiance, or publicly fret in hopes of being comforted. Why is this reaction so common and powerful? What are more constructive ways of dealing with the fear of not being allowed?

50. Salon C • Reading: John Chu

51. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Lila Garrott

52. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Theodora Goss, Victoria Janssen

3:30 PM

53. Salon C • Reading: Malka Older

54. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Christopher Brown

4:00 PM

55. Salon 3 • Why Does Space Get the Opera and Cyber the Punk? • Liz Gorinsky, Austin Grossman, Catherynne M. Valente, Sabrina Vourvoulias, T.X. Watson

For Arisia’s 50 Panels in 75 Minutes panel in 2018, Cecilia Tan suggested “Why Does Space Get the Opera and Cyber the Punk?”, which was universally acclaimed as too good for 1.5 minutes. Our panelists will give this exploration of speculative and musical genres the full hour it deserves. (And where is the spacepunk and cyber opera?)

56. Salon 4 • The Spectrum of Short Fiction SF/F Editing • Mike Allen, Scott H. Andrews, Neil Clarke, Ellen Datlow, Mary Anne Mohanraj, Sheila Williams

This panel of SF/F magazine and anthology editors will discuss different approaches to their work, from very hands-on to very hands-off. What are currently accepted best practices for editing—if consensus even exists on that—and how have they changed over time? Do editors still commission stories and collaborate almost to the point of coauthoring, or is that era over? And how can a writer submitting a story know what kind of editing they’re likely to get?

57. Salon A • Snatched from the Sun: Alternative Shakespeares and the Zemblance of Reality • Greer Gilman
Why does a small but vocal and impassioned band of conspiracy theorists believe that Shakespeare wasn’t Shakespeare? Why do they read his work for the common stage as the encrypted secret history of a genius suppressed? Why do they think that Hamlet was a selfie? While examining these questions, Greer Gilman will explore the shipping of John Donne’s muse, sepulchral monkey-heads, canals on Mars, vice-versal doublets, the Elizabethan elevator pitch, the seacoast of Bohemia, ciphers, triflers, Templars, and the true author of As You Leak It.

58. Salon B • A Post-Police World • Pablo Defendini, L. Timmel Duchamp, Josh Jasper, Chelsea R. Miller, Nicole D. Sconiers
Policing, as it has developed and is currently implemented, is a sometimes violent system for maintaining order and perpetuating the power status quo. Better systems and better ways are possible. This panel will explore the real and ostensible goals of policing and look for ethical ways to achieve them, in our future or on created worlds.

59. Salon C • Reading: Jeffrey Ford
60. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Matthew Kressel
61. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Jim Freund, Barbara Krasnoff
62. Autograph Table • Autographs: James Patrick Kelly, Cecilia Tan

4:30 PM
63. Salon C • Reading: John Crowley
64. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Sonya Taaffe
5:00 PM

65. Salon 3 • The Works of Tananarive Due • John Langan, L. Penelope, Terence Taylor

Tananarive Due is a teacher in the creative writing MFA program at Antioch University Los Angeles and has been inducted into Northwestern University’s Medill School of Journalism’s Hall of Achievement, but she is best known as an author of speculative fiction. She has won the New Voice in Literature Award, the Carl Brandon Society’s Kindred Award, the American Book Award, and the NAACP Image Award, and her short fiction has appeared in several best-of-the-year anthologies. With her husband, Steven Barnes, she writes the Tennyson Hardwick mystery series. Join us as we welcome her to Readercon and discuss her impressive body of work.

66. Salon 4 • Fascism as a Genre • Gillian Daniels, Ruthanna Emrys, Paul Levinson, Howard Waldrop

Many thinkers have approached fascism as storytelling. In 1936, Walter Benjamin wrote, “The logical result of Fascism is the introduction of aesthetics into political life.” Umberto Eco’s 1995 essay “Ur-Fascism” considered this approach. And in 2018, Nick Harkaway tweeted, “Part of the danger of Fascism is that it’s less an agenda and more a style.” How can the lens of genre help us understand and combat fascism in the present era? What would anti-fascist aesthetics look like, and how can we write them into speculative fiction?

67. Salon A • Everything You Wanted to Know About Readercon (but Were Afraid to Ask) • Rose Fox, Sioban Krzywicki, Emily Wagner

Every year is a new con and a new experience. Have questions about where the readings are or what kind of fannish meet-ups are happening? Curious about the track themes and presentations? Want to know about volunteering basics or the quietest time to visit the con suite? Readercon’s movers and shakers will tell you all this and more. Come prepared to ask questions!

68. Salon B • 15 Years Since the Mundane Manifesto • John Crowley, Gregory Feeley, Chris Gerwel, Carolyn Ives Gilman, Vandana Singh

In 2004, a group of SF writers produced the “Mundane Manifesto,” which suggested that various common SF tropes and themes (FTL, galactic empires, etc.) were so unlikely as to be essentially frivolous and should be avoided. A substantial body of “mundane SF” was subsequently published. In recent years, however, a number of writers have published SF that makes forthright use of space academies, psychic powers, and other decidedly non-mundane tropes. Led by Gregory Feeley, this panel will discuss this significant shift in science fiction.

69. Salon C • Reading: Stephen Graham Jones

70. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Tracy Townsend

71. Abigail Adams • Make a Friend, Go to Dinner
New to Readercon and looking to meet people, or just in the mood for some company over dinner? Drop by this informal, unstructured meetup to make a new friend or three. Low-key icebreakers will be provided.

72. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Yanni Kuznia, Miriam Newman

73. Autograph Table • Autographs: Meg Elison, Cadwell Turnbull

5:30 PM

74. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Henry Wessells

6:00 PM

75. Salon A • The Fabulousness of Earth’s Spices • B. Diane Martin, David G. Shaw
The galactic committee for the eradication of Earth needs to be convinced that Terran spices are really fabulous and worth keeping around. If you were an intergalactic spice seller charged with saving Earth, what would you pack to relay the intrinsic flavors of six quintessential Earth spices? David Shaw and B. Diane Martin will have some suggestions in this culinary demo.

76. Salon B • 17776 and All That: The Crumbling of the Jock-Nerd Divide • Susan Bigelow, Keffy R.M. Kehrli, Robert Killheffer, Marissa Lingen, Cecilia Tan
Jon Bois’s wild digital narrative “17776: What Football Will Look Like in the Future” appeared on SB Nation, a sports news website, and aimed straight at the commonalities of sports and SF fandoms: rules and ways around the rules, glorious absurdity, tragedy alongside heroism. The jock-nerd divide has crumbled. What does that mean for nerd lit? Will cerebral SF embrace sweaty physicality? Will epic hockey games replace epic battlefields? This panel of sports-fan fans will discuss these possibilities and more.

77. Salon C • Reading: Karen Heuler

78. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Carlos Hernandez and C.S.E. Cooney

79. Abigail Adams • Study Hall (Friday)
    Gather with laptops, notebooks, or lovingly maintained antique portable typewriters for quiet unstructured writing time. This is a great opportunity to jump on a bit of inspiration from a panel or tackle the project you swore you were going to get done this weekend.

80. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: James Patrick Kelly, Benjamin C. Kinney

81. Autograph Table • Autographs: Anna Kashina, Barbara Krasnoff

6:30 PM

82. Salon 3 • Horror Noire Screening and Q&A • Tananarive Due
    Tananarive Due hosts a screening of her new documentary, Horror Noire: A History of Black Horror, followed by a Q&A.

83. Salon C • Reading: Rosemary Kirstein

84. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Tamara Vardomskaya

7:00 PM

85. Salon A • How I Illustrated the 50th Anniversary Edition of Earthsea by Ursula K. Le Guin • Charles Vess
    Illustrator Charles Vess will discuss his visual journey into Earthsea with Ursula K. Le Guin as his collaborator on the 56 illustrations for the 50th anniversary release of The Books of Earthsea: The Complete Illustrated Edition. Their wonderful four-year conversation guided his pencils so he could bring forth Earthsea as she envisioned it. Le Guin approved every drawing before her death, and the suggestions and comments she made to Vess along the way have created their own delightful stories.
86. Salon B • Amazon, Goodreads, NetGalley, and Edelweiss, Oh My! • Holly Walrath

There are a variety of valuable resources for independent authors out there, but how does one choose among them, and how can an indie book stand out among the crowd? Holly Lyn Walrath will explain how to navigate the available options for self-publishing and explore how books can reach more readers via the growing field of reviewer markets.

87. Salon C • Reading: Mary Anne Mohanraj

88. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: JD Horn

89. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Marc Abrahams, Meg Elison

90. Autograph Table • Autographs: L. Penelope, E.J. Stevens

7:30 PM

91. Salon C • Reading: Vivian Shaw

92. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Elaine Isaak

8:00 PM

93. Salon A • Edward Bryant Interviewed by Mark Barsotti • Jean-Philippe Gervais

In this 2010 interview conducted by music critic Mark Barsotti, Memorial GOH Ed Bryant discusses his life, sources of inspiration, favorite stories, his friendship with Harlan Ellison, and much more.

94. Salon B • The Etiquette of Criticism • John Clute, Lila Garrott, Barbara Krasnoff, John Langan, Arkady Martine

In 1938, critic Cyril Connolly advised writers to listen for “the critic’s truth sharpened by envy, the embarrassed praise of a sincere friend, the silence of gifted contemporaries.” How does etiquette influence criticism, and conversations among critics about criticism? How does the critic’s place within (or outside of) the field or community influence their criticism and how it’s received? This panel will tackle these and other thorny questions of critical etiquette.

95. Salon C • Reading: John P. Murphy

96. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Benjamin C. Kinney
97. Abigail Adams • Rainbow Social and Safe Space
   Join other LGBTQIA2P folks at Readercon in a safer space to make friends, chat about whatever you feel like, and build mutual support within fandom. If your identity is anywhere on or under the rainbow, you’re welcome to participate. (To maintain a safer space, allo-cis-het allies are asked not to attend.)

98. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Neil Clarke, Mary Anne Mohanraj

99. Autograph Table • Autographs: C.S.E. Cooney, Catherynne M. Valente

8:30 PM

100. Salon C • Reading: Sarah Pinsker
101. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: N.S. Dolkart

9:00 PM

102. Salon B • Translation Slam! • Anatoly Belilovsky, Anna Kashina, Tamara Vardomskaya
   Led by Anatoly Belilovsky, several translators will take a paragraph in Russian and produce their own translations into English. A canonical version may also be available. The versions will be read and their similarities and differences discussed.

103. Salon C • Reading: Sabrina Vourvoulias
104. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Meg Elison
105. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Liz Gorinsky, Rosemary Kirstein
106. Autograph Table • Autographs: Arkady Martine, Vivian Shaw

9:30 PM

107. Salon C • Reading: Victoria Sandbrook
108. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Sunny Moraine
10:00 PM

109. Salon 3 • The Cordwainer Smith Rediscovery Award

The Cordwainer Smith Rediscovery Award, honoring a writer worthy of being rediscovered by today’s readers, is granted annually by a panel of judges. Past winners include Olaf Stapledon, R. A. Lafferty, Edgar Pangborn, Henry Kuttner and C. L. Moore, Leigh Brackett, William Hope Hodgson, Daniel F. Galouye, Stanley G. Weinbaum, A. Merritt, Katherine MacLean, and Judith Merril.

10:30 PM

110. Salon 3 • Meet the Pros(e)

Each writer at this party has selected a short, pithy quotation from their own work and is armed with a sheet of 30 printed labels, the quote replicated on each. As attendees mingle, the request “May I have a sticker?” provides a convenient icebreaker for tongue-tied fans approaching the pros whose work they love. Rearrange stickers to make a poem or statement, wear them as decoration, or simply enjoy the opportunity to meet and chat with your favorite writers.

11:30 PM

111. Salon 3 • Dance Party

Dance into the wee hours with your fellow attendees and panelists. We’ll be playing music primarily from, but not limited to, the 1980s and 1990s.

SUNDAY

Registration: 9 AM to 6 PM (Wollaston)
Information: 9 AM to 6 PM (Ballroom lobby)
Con Suite: 8:30 AM to midnight (Room 863)
Bookshop: 10 AM to 6 PM (Salons 5 and 6)

10:00 AM

112. Salon 3 • The Instrumentality of Slankind • Graham Sleight

SF can be a tool for advocacy, saying either, “Society should go in this direction!” or the opposite. However, some authors have actively shied away from this role. Sometimes advocacy has worked, and sometimes it hasn’t; for instance, Pan Am weren’t flying to the moon in 2001. By considering the work of authors such as Octavia E. Butler, Thomas M. Disch, William Gibson, Robert A. Heinlein, N. K. Jemisin, and Kim Stanley Robinson, Graham Sleight will try to make sense of whether, and how, SF can argue for better worlds.

113. Salon 4 • Compassionate AI • Amal El-Mohtar, Carlos Hernandez, Matthew Kressel, Natalie Luhrs, Kestrell Verlager
In a 2018 tweet, Amal El-Mohtar described the artificial intelligences in Martha Wells’s Murderbot series and in Jeph Jacques’s Questionable Content webcomic as «gorgeously compassionate.» This is a reversal of the long-running trope in SF of characterizing AI as cold, scheming, and murderous. Where else can readers find compassionate AI, and what makes these depictions so vital and appealing?

114. Salon A • The Future of Gene Editing: Universal Cures, Perfect Species, or a Global Disaster? • Anna Kashina
Recent advances in biomedical research have enabled us not only to introduce new genes and create genetically modified organisms, but to edit genomes and eliminate inborn causes of such diseases as cancer and heart failure. New technologies make such editing easier and easier, reminiscent of the way computers once revolutionized our ability to edit written texts. Biomedical sciences professor Anna Kashina discusses what is currently possible with gene editing and where these technologies are leading.

115. Salon B • Badly Written SF/F Round-Robin Read-Aloud
In the grand (?) tradition of Eye of Argon read-alouds, we’ll pass around and read from wonderfully terrible, terribly wonderful works of speculative fiction. Each participant will read until the buzzer sounds or they’re overcome with hysterics. Bring your unfavorities to share, or come to listen and laugh. Note: this is a festival of badly written SF/F, with a focus on (lack of) prose quality; it does not include works whose badness lies in harmful ideas or tired stereotypes.

116. Salon C • Reading: Keffy R.M. Kehrli
117. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Farah Rose Smith
118. Abigail Adams • Picture Book Storytime for All Ages (Saturday)
   All ages are welcome for an hour of picture book storytime.

119. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Vivian Shaw, Vandana Singh

120. Autograph Table • Autographs: Stephen Graham Jones, Paul Tremblay

10:30 AM

121. Salon C • Reading: James Patrick Kelly

122. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: John Lawson

11:00 AM

123. Salon 3 • Whatever Happened with That Singularity Thing? •
   Ruthanna Emrys, Matthew Kressel, Jess Nevins, John O’Neil, Romie Stott
   The development of artificial superintelligence doesn’t seem to have brought about the sudden and unfathomable changes to human civilization that so many people hypothesized. Is the singularity yet to come? What other possibilities are being imagined for futures in which humans and AIs mingle and merge?

124. Salon 4 • The Real Middle Ages, Part 2: Anywhere but Europe •
   Charles Allison, Carolyn Ives Gilman, Anna Kashina, Chelsea R. Miller, Walt Williams
   Writers looking for alternatives to cod-medieval European settings don’t need to look far. The years 500 to 1500 C.E. were times of tremendous cultural and technological change around the world. Novelties of that period included Islam, paper money, and fast-ripening rice; the Incan Empire, Great Zimbabwe, and the Tang Dynasty flourished. Which non-European settings of the 6th to 16th centuries have been successfully used as the basis for fantasy lands, and which might writers find particularly inspiring?

125. Salon A • Henry Darger: Inside America’s Best-Known “Outsider” Artist • Elizabeth Hand
   Reclusive and eccentric janitor Henry Darger (subject of Elizabeth Hand’s forthcoming novel, Curious Toys) lived alone for his entire life and only after his death was his incredible magnum opus discovered: a 15,000 page illustrated book titled The Story of the Vivian Girls, in What Is Known as the Realms of the Unreal, of the Glandeco-Angelinian War Storm, Caused by the Child Slave Rebellion. Hand explores the true crime that obsessed and inspired him, and how Darger became known as one of the country’s most remarkable artists.

126. Salon B • Incorporating the Media into Fantasy Worlds • Zig Zag Claybourne, Randee Dawn, L. Penelope, Sabrina Vourvoulias, Paul Weimer

From the 24-hour news cycle to online journalism, the media plays an enormous role in our society, but it tends to make less of an appearance in fantasy works. L. Penelope will lead a discussion on how authors incorporate the media into their fantasy writing, as well as the challenges and benefits of doing so.

127. Salon C • Reading: Marissa Lingen

128. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: teri.zin

129. Abigail Adams • Make a Friend, Go to Lunch

New to Readercon and looking to meet people, or just in the mood for some company over lunch? Drop by this informal, unstructured meetup to make a new friend or three. Low-key icebreakers will be provided.

130. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Tananarive Due, Sheila Williams

131. Autograph Table • Autographs: Ellen Datlow, Theodora Goss

11:30 AM

132. Salon C • Reading: Vandana Singh

133. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: F. Brett Cox

12:00 PM

134. Salon 3 • The Implications of SFWA's Rate Increase (CART) • Scott H. Andrews, Pablo Defendini, Michael J. DeLuca, Paul Levinson, Romie Stott

SFWA will be raising their designated qualifying rate for fiction from 6 to 8 cents per word in September. It might seem a small change, but it has the potential to alter the field significantly for a lot of writers, readers, editors, and publishers. This panel, led by Michael J. DeLuca, will discuss what the change means for specific markets, who’ll be able to meet the new rate, who benefits and who doesn’t, and how this relates to the broader economic and political climate.

135. Salon 4 • Heist Stories as Meta-Genre • Josh Jasper, John P. Murphy, Tracy Townsend, John Wiswell, Navah Wolfe
On a panel at Readercon 29 about collaboration and community, John Wiswell observed that heist novels have “a synthesis of premise and plot,” while Scott Lynch added that heist stories reinforce that people need one another. This panel will dig more into heist stories, which (like humor and horror) can be layered on top of any genre or setting. What makes them satisfying? How can they make use of speculative elements while retaining their core of human ingenuity and interdependence?

136. Salon A • Classic Fiction Book Club: Rosemary Kirstein’s Steerswomen Series • Elaine Isaak, Victoria Janssen, Yves Meynard, Kate Nepveu, Cecilia Tan
Since the publication of Rosemary Kirstein’s first novel, The Steerswoman, in 1989, the Steerswoman series has become a quiet classic for its powerful female friendships, slowly-revealed worldbuilding, and unique approach to genre paradigms. Over the last 30 years, four novels have been published, with another two intended in the future. We’ll look at the state of the series today, and speculate about where it might be going.

137. Salon B • The Worst Job You’ve Ever Had • Susan Bigelow, Jack Dann, Jim Freund, Auston Habershaw, Karen Heuler, José Pablo Iriarte, Stephen Graham Jones, Keffy R.M. Kehrli, Bart Leib, Vivian Shaw
Bring your best stories of terrible jobs outside the literary world to this story circle of anti-nostalgia. Whether they inspired your writing or left you blocked for years, share the pain and get some validating cries of horror, peals of laughter, and grimaces of sympathy.

138. Salon C • Group Reading: Tabula Rasa • Randee Dawn, Barbara Krasnoff, Terence Taylor
Members of the New York–based writers group will read selections from their work.
139. Sylvanus Thayer • From Page to Stage: Techniques, Tricks, and Improv Games to Help Writers with Public Speaking • Martin Cahill, C.S.E. Cooney
Performers C.S.E. Cooney and Martin Cahill will help writers improve their public speaking through improv comedy exercises and theater games, showing how public speaking is rooted in confidence, trust, and drama. The workshop will include some warm-ups and techniques, as well as an opportunity to practice in front of others. Bring a sample of your work to read aloud.

140. Abigail Adams • Study Hall (Saturday)
Gather with laptops, notebooks, or lovingly maintained antique portable typewriters for quiet unstructured writing time. This is a great opportunity to jump on a bit of inspiration from a panel or tackle the project you swore you were going to get done this weekend.

141. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: N.S. Dolkart, Gemma Files
142. Autograph Table • Autographs: Amal El-Mohtar, Max Gladstone

1:00 PM
143. Salon 3 • Writing While Chronically Ill or Disabled (CART) • Lisa Bradley, Jack Haringa, Vylar Kaftan, Darcie Little Badger, Sheila Williams
There are myriad ways in which disabilities and chronic illnesses can make a writer’s life harder: chronic pain makes it hard to focus on writing, inaccessible venues diminish opportunities for networking, and speech difficulties can interfere with readings, to name just a few. What adaptation strategies can help a disabled or ill writer function? How can a writer who becomes disabled mid-career learn to adjust to the new status quo?

144. Salon 4 • Outgroup Reviews of Ownvoices Work • José Pablo Iriarte, Victoria Sandbrook, Farah Rose Smith, teri.zin
When authors write from their own experiences as marginalized people (creating ownvoices stories), reviewers who don’t share that marginalization (outgroup reviewers) may struggle to appropriately contextualize, analyze, and discuss the work. How can outsider reviewers handle this knowledge gap? What’s the place of sensitivity reading for reviews? When should an outgroup reviewer step aside and support the work of an ownvoices reviewer instead?
145. Salon A • The White Space Around the Words: The Camaraderie of Poetry and Comedy • Amal El-Mohtar, Greer Gilman, Julia Rios, Romie Stott, Sonya Taaffe

In a 2018 interview, comedian Dylan Moran said, “The verbal fun of standup is much more like poetry than prose... because a lot of it is about elision, suggestion, inference, the white space around the words. They’re much closer than people think, poetry and jokes.” Our panelists explore this similarity between poetry and comedy, sharing some of their favorite examples of wordplay that works within the white space.

146. Salon B • Collecting, Curating, and Culling a Personal Library • Rose Fox

In this discussion, facilitated by Rose Fox, book-lovers will grapple with the logistical and emotional challenges of managing personal libraries. Topics may include pruning books that will never be read, selecting new books to include, enhancing the enjoyment of browsing one’s own shelves, and increasing the odds of wonderful, serendipitous encounters with beloved books.

147. Salon C • Reading: Theodora Goss

148. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Elizabeth Hand, Catherynne M. Valente

149. Autograph Table • Autographs: Tananarive Due, Michael Swanwick

1:30 PM

150. Salon C • Reading: Max Gladstone

2:00 PM

151. Salon 3 • Portrayals of Disability in 21st-Century Horror Fiction (CART) • Gemma Files, John Lawson, Elsa Sjūneson-Henry, Kestrell Verlager

Disability has often been used as a metaphor or trope in horror fiction in a way that’s insensitive at best or oppressive at worst to people with all kinds of disabilities. This panel will discuss 21st-century approaches to this trope—both those that fall into the same pitfalls and those that deconstruct them.
152. Salon 4 • I Don’t Know Why I’m on This Panel (CART) • Jeffrey Ford, Elizabeth Hand, Arkady Martine, Cecilia Tan, Sabrina Vourvoulias
This phrase is often spoken during panelist introductions at conventions. In this case it’s literally true: the panelists have no idea why the program staff have put them on a panel together or what they’re supposed to discuss. They may try to figure it out, or they may have a totally unstructured chat for an hour. Either way, it’s sure to be entertaining.

153. Salon A • Marvelous and Mundane: The Impossible, Inadequate 40-Minute History of How Fiction Got Its Genres • Austin Grossman
Barriers between speculative and “literary” fiction are crumbling. In this talk, Austin Grossman tries and inevitably fails to understand how we got those barriers in the first place! It’ll be fast, fun, and messy.

154. Salon B • Translation and Embedded Assumptions • Anatoly Belilovsky, John Chu, Neil Clarke, Pablo Defendini, Tamara Vardomskaya
In an interview with Fran Wilde, Emily Wilson described the effect of embedded cultural assumptions in translating The Odyssey—not only the assumptions in the original Greek, but the assumptions that past English translators have imposed on the text. Panelists will discuss how translators can and should approach these challenges.

155. Salon C • Reading: Michael Cisco

156. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Jack Dann

157. Abigail Adams • Analog and Digital Gaming Meetup
Whether your preferences run toward Pandemic, Pokémon Go, or Portal, come join other gaming fans to make new friends, swap contact information, organize players for games you’d like to run later in the weekend, or even play a quick hand of Magic: The Gathering if there’s time. Feel free to bring a tabletop game that can be played in under 30 minutes.

158. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: John Clute, Stephen Graham Jones

159. Autograph Table • Autographs: Zig Zag Claybourne, John Crowley
2:30 PM

160. Salon C • Reading: Scott Edelman

161. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Barbara Krasnoff

3:00 PM

162. Salon 3 • The Works of Stephen Graham Jones (CART) • Jack Haringa, John Langan, Darcie Little Badger, teri.zin, Paul Tremblay

Stephen Graham Jones is a Piikáni (Blackfeet) author of cutting-edge fiction, ranging from the crime, horror, and science fiction genres to the purely experimental. His work has been multiply nominated for the Shirley Jackson, Stoker, and World Fantasy Awards, with Mapping the Interior (2017) winning the Stoker Award for Superior Achievement in Long Fiction. He has also won the Texas Institute of Letters Award and been the recipient of a National Endowment of the Arts fellowship in fiction. Playful, inventive, sincere, imaginative, touching, and horrifying, Jones’s work spans genres and defies the cynicism and alienation of postmodern literature. Please join us in welcoming him to Readercon and exploring his fiction.

163. Salon 4 • Periods of Not Writing (CART) • Inanna Arthen, Terri Bruce, Jeffrey Ford, Kathy Kitts, Lauren Roy

Writers sometimes go through long periods of not writing that have nothing to do with writer’s block. The reason for the break could be a demanding job, child or elder care, dealing with illness, or other real-world issues. How do writers deal with these periods of not writing? Are there strategies to make space for creativity when it’s hard to just sit down and write? How can one get past the awful feeling that one will never write again?

164. Salon A • How We Wrote This Is How You Lose the Time War • Amal El-Mohtar, Max Gladstone

Max Gladstone and Amal El-Mohtar discuss how they co-wrote their epistolary spy vs. spy novella.

165. Salon B • You Know, It Kinda Grows on You • James Patrick Kelly, Marissa Lingen, Arkady Martine, Eric Schaller, David G. Shaw

Spaceships that are giant plants, humans whose brains rival supercomputers, lizards bred to function as flying flamethrowers—these are just a few science-fictional examples of how humans might manipulate their bodies and environments to support the human race’s spread throughout the universe. This panel will examine imagined technology that lives and breathes, and how human life might change and grow alongside it.

166. Salon C • Reading: Tananarive Due

167. Sylvanus Thayer • Dramatic Readings from the Ig Nobel Prizes • Marc Abrahams, C.S.E. Cooney, Rose Fox, Heath Miller, Sonya Taaffe

Highlights from Ig Nobel prize-winning studies and patents are presented in dramatic mini-readings by luminaries and experts (in some field). The audience will have an opportunity to ask questions about the research presented. Answers will be based on the expertise of the presenters, who may have a different expertise than the researchers.

168. Abigail Adams • Stimming-Friendly Brain Reset Time

Overwhelmed by the intensity of Readercon? Want some quiet alone-together time with other people? Need stimming time without worrying about being judged? Come on by! There’ll be a selection of stimmable items available for use, plus foam earplugs and sunglasses. Quietly chat with people, bounce on your toes, hide in a corner.... Whatever works for you and doesn’t impinge on others is actively welcome!

169. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Ellen Datlow, Scott Edelman

170. Autograph Table • Autographs: Phenderson Djéli Clark, Vylar Kaftan

4:00 PM

171. Salon 4 • Stephen Graham Jones Interviewed by Paul Tremblay (CART) • Stephen Graham Jones, Paul Tremblay

5:00 PM

172. Salon 4 • Tananarive Due Interviewed by Kate Maruyama (CART) • Tananarive Due, Kate Maruyama
173. Salon A • The Black Space of the Mountains: The American West in Speculative Fiction • Don D’Ammassa, Carolyn Ives Gilman, Alexander Jablokov, Hillary Monahan, James A. Moore

The “settling” of the American West has been romanticized to the point of myth, spawning weird west stories, fantasy westerns, and space westerns galore. The region’s less savory history, including the oppression of native populations and non-white immigrant workers, is often absent from these narratives. This panel will discuss insider and outsider narratives of the American West in speculative fiction, “global wests” on other globes, place as character (as seen in the work of GoH Stephen Graham Jones), and more.

174. Salon B • The Future (If Any) of the Talking Animal Fantasy • John Crowley, Gregory Feeley, Jim Freund, Sherwood Smith, Vinnie Tesla

The talking animal fantasy is one of the very oldest forms of recorded fiction; fables of talking animals appear as early as Hesiod and Aesop and in the Panchatantra. Though popular throughout the Middle Ages, by the 19th century such tales had ceased to be acceptable themes for Western literature outside of children’s stories; 20th-century magical realism and genre fantasy did much to reclaim it for adult fiction. Gregory Feeley and Sherwood Smith will lead a discussion of how Nalo Hopkinson’s Sister Mine, Haruki Murakami’s Kafka on the Shore, John Crowley’s Ka, and Yoon Ha Lee’s Dragon Pearl make interestingly different uses of this form, and whether it can remain viable for much longer.

175. Sylvanus Thayer • Rainbow Open Mic

Celebrate the voices of LGBTQIA2P writers! Read your work out loud among a group of welcoming peers. Hear new work by established authors and meet new writers! If your identity is anywhere on or under the rainbow, you’re welcome to read your work; allies are invited to attend and listen. Sign up at the information desk.

176. Abigail Adams • Nonwhite/PoC Social and Safe Space

Join other people of color/nonwhite people at Readercon in a safer space to make friends, chat about whatever you feel like, and build mutual support within fandom. If you identify as a person of color, nonwhite, or multiracial, you’re welcome to participate. (To maintain a safer space, white allies are asked not to attend.)
There’s been much analysis of both the technique and the moral legitimacy of making readers feel alienated, disturbed, or unsafe. But in a 2017 keynote speech at the Surrey International Writers’ Conference, Amal El-Mohtar said, “We don’t talk a great deal about being hospitable; about being welcoming in our writing, about creating worlds... that—even if they contain fierce creatures or vicious climates—receive the reader as a guest.” Panelists will discuss how, when, and why to make readers feel welcome in the text.

Computer science and neuroscience may each be getting closer to the mysteries of cognition, but they do so from very different directions. How do they inform each other, and how do they get in each other’s way? Are their differences reconcilable? For that matter, is it even meaningful to think of them as being about the same thing? What do their cutting edges imply for our own deep dreams of fantastika?

Come one, come all, to see fabulous guests win no prizes at all and sing their hearts out in this comic game show hosted by Heath Miller. Thrill while he runs our teams through your favorite SFF games! The teams feature the Original and Ever-Present Catherynne M. Valente and Sparkling Newcomer Sarah Pinsker as well as Returning Champion Martin Cahill and Program Chair Extraordinaire Rose Fox! This year’s show is a benefit for the Refugee and Immigrant Center for Education and Legal Services (RAICES). Donations of any amount are welcome.
182. Salon A • The Roads and the Woods: The American South in Speculative Fiction • Christopher Brown, F. Brett Cox, JD Horn, Howard Waldrop

The American South’s bloody history, mingled cultures, complex geography, and even flora and fauna exert a profound influence on its speculative fiction writers. Our panelists will discuss ways Southern authors employ the region’s unique storytelling traditions to craft tales rooted in the South’s past and present.

183. Salon B • How Much Science Is Enough Science? • Marc Abrahams, David DeGraff, Anna Kashina, Kathy Kitts, Vivian Shaw

Some topics require more scientific know-how than others. How much do writers need to know for particular topics—and how do they know how much they need to know? What are some techniques for acquiring necessary knowledge without getting a PhD? This panel of scientist-writers offers helpful guidance.

184. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Ruthanna Emrys

8:30 PM

185. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Dianna Sanchez

9:00 PM

186. Salon A • Food at the Corner of Fiction and Community • Andrea Martinez Corbin, N.S. Dolkart, Greer Gilman, Michael Swanwick, Sabrina Vourvoulias

Food plays a central role in many cultures and accordingly takes center stage in the work of many speculative fiction writers. How does cuisine help define, or build, a community? How can food be used to communicate important information about a people to the reader? What are some particularly noteworthy examples of the way food can be used to set, or subvert, expectations?

187. Salon B • Other (American) Regional Horrors • John Langan, Ian Muneshwar, Jess Nevins, Nicole D. Sconiers, Elsa Sjunneson-Henry

When thinking of horror as a regional affect, it’s easy enough to go to New England or the American South and call it a day. But there’s nothing uniquely frightening about these regions: people can be scared anywhere. This panel will examine what can make other regions of the Americas sources of horror fiction, and who writes those tales, and how.

188. Sylvanus Thayer • Edward Bryant Memorial Round-Robin Reading
If you knew Memorial GOH Edward Bryant or were inspired by his work, come read from your own work for five to ten minutes at this hour-long round robin (likely to be scheduled for Friday or Saturday evening in honor of Ed’s fondness for late-night readings). Hosted by Chuck Anderson and Jim LeMay, editors of Edward Bryant’s Sphere of Influence.

10:00 PM

189. Salon 4 • Reading: Howard Waldrop

---

SUNDAY

Registration: 9 AM to 1 PM (Wollaston)
Information: 9 AM to 1 PM (Ballroom lobby)
Con Suite: 9 AM to 3 PM (Room 863)
Bookshop: 10 AM to 2 PM (Salons 5 and 6)

10:00 AM

190. Salon 3 • Marginalized People Destroy History • Bill Campbell,
Sioban Krzywicki, Chelsea R. Miller, Mary Anne Mohanraj, Elsa Sjunneson-Henry

In P. Djèlí Clark’s The Black God’s Drums, African gods wreak havoc on airships during the Civil War. In Nisi Shawl’s Everfair, the Congolese beat back the Belgians with steam power and ancient magic. Sarah Gailey’s River of Teeth adds hippos and gender flexibility to 19th-century America. These stories and others reimagine history through the eyes of the oppressed and flip the script. Panelists will identify other moments in history in need of the same treatment, and discuss what that might look like.
191. Salon 4 • Middle Book Syndrome • Theodora Goss, Anna Kashina, Kate Nepveu, Tracy Townsend
The middle book in a trilogy is often thought of as the one in which the fascinating setting and gripping conflict that were set up in the first book... are set up some more. Panelists will discuss recent trilogies and the degrees to which they fit this stereotype; how middle book syndrome has evolved over time; and how they’ve learned to avoid, address, or love the middle book’s problems as authors and as readers.

192. Salon A • Exoplanets in 2019 • Kathy Kitts
With 6,000 exoplanets discovered and counting, how many might host life and how many of those might develop intelligence? Kathy Kitts will discuss the likelihood of recognizable extraterrestrial life by examining our odder earthling brethren first and then extrapolating, as well as biosigns and the techniques to observe them.

193. Salon B • Satire, Criticism, and Humility • John Clute, Meg Ellison, Victoria Sandbrook, Graham Sleight, Henry Wessells
Satire and criticism are sometimes presumed to be the province of snobs who enjoy tearing down anything they don’t like, but the most nuanced critique comes from someone who has a genuine desire to improve the world by pointing out what’s wrong with it. How can critics and satirists bring humility to fields that also necessarily require a strong ego and a belief in one’s own rightness? How does one write these works from a place of performing a service?

194. Salon C • Group Reading: Word Count Irregulars • Eden Baylee, Cameron Garriepy, Jack Gwaltney, Maria Haskins, Kathleen Kayembe, M.J. King, Bill Kirton, John McCaffrey, Walt Williams, R.B. Wood
The Word Count Irregulars read flash fiction stories based on a visual prompt.

195. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: L. Timmel Duchamp

196. Abigail Adams • Picture Book Storytime for All Ages (Sunday)
All ages are welcome for an hour of picture book storytime.

197. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Jeanne Cavelos, John Crowley

198. Autograph Table • Autographs: Gemma Files, Malka Older
Lloyd Alexander, translator of Jean-Paul Sartre, wrote an existentialist epic fantasy series. As Jesse Schotter writes on Full Stop, “The end of The High King, and Taran’s choice to remain in Prydain... salvage[s] the idea of free will within the deterministic framework of the genre.” How did existentialism influence Alexander’s other work (Time Cat, the Westmark trilogy)? What are other examples of existentialist speculative fiction epics? With the present deconstruction of prophecy-driven epics, how can writers learn from Alexander’s work?

The Shirley Jackson Awards recognize outstanding achievement in the literature of psychological suspense, horror, and the dark fantastic. Jackson (1916–1965) wrote classic works such as The Haunting of Hill House, We Have Always Lived in the Castle, and “The Lottery.” Readercon’s guests of honor will emcee the ceremony, granting awards to the best works published in 2018 as selected by a jury of professionals in the field.

Relatively few stories have protagonists much older than the target audience, and the traits commonly associated with heroism aren’t often associated with age. Yet in speculative fiction there are all manner of ways to break the link between age and infirmity, or to defy or redefine the concept of aging. Panelists will explore the potential of elderly protagonists and unpack a hero’s journey that doesn’t get the attention it deserves.

In the 2018 article “Comforting Myths,” Rabih Alameddine argues that the “world literature” genre consists of authors who “are basically safe, domesticated, just exotic enough to make our readers feel that they are liberal, not parochial or biased.” Panelists will discuss issues raised in the article, including what speculative literature's comforting myths are, how the dominant culture identifies which writers are allowed to be heard, and the ways in which being labeled a “diverse” author can be a double-edged sword.

204. Salon C • Reading: Erik Amundsen
205. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Jeff Hecht
206. Abigail Adams • Study Hall (Sunday)
   Gather with laptops, notebooks, or lovingly maintained antique portable typewriters for quiet unstructured writing time. This is a great opportunity to jump on a bit of inspiration from a panel or tackle the project you swore you were going to get done this weekend.

207. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: John P. Murphy, Sarah Pinsker
208. Autograph Table • Autographs: Alexander Jablokov, Howard Waldrop

11:30 AM

209. Salon C • Reading: Paul Levinson
210. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Walt Williams

12:00 PM

211. Salon 3 • Renovating the Haunted House • Jeanne Cavelos, Michael Cisco, Gillian Daniels, Hillary Monahan, Jess Nevins
   The haunted house story has been intermittently popular since the 1840s, with peaks in the 1950s (with Shirley Jackson’s The Haunting of Hill House) and the 1970s (with Stephen King’s The Shining and Anne Rivers Siddons’s The House Next Door). In the 21st century, the haunted house story is enjoying a new popularity. What is it about haunted house stories that draws readers and writers alike? What makes haunted house stories retain their relevance and power?
Journalism has always faced economic, political, infrastructural, and technological threats, and the current era is no exception. How are today’s journalists dealing with these challenges, and how can both problems and solutions be extrapolated into near-future or far-future science fiction? How would journalists cover apocalypses, alien invasions, or the singularity? What if those journalists were robots or AIs? What does journalism’s history hint at for its future?

Readercon and other national conventions are great, but what’s happening in your backyard? Local cons, reading events, workshops, classes, and critique groups are just a few examples of places where you might find other speculative fiction fans. If those things don’t exist near you, it might be time to create them! Panelists will share their experiences with joining and building in-person fannish communities, including joys, perils, and practical advice.

In the 2017 essay “The Peril of Being Disbelieved: Horror and the Intuition of Women” at Tor.com, Emily Asher-Perrin examines the horror trope of the woman who intuits that a situation is dangerous but is ignored by those around her, and how that trope mirrors society’s refusal to believe women more generally. Panelists will explore the trope, whether and how it is being subverted, and the ways in which other marginalized groups are also disbelieved.
12:30 PM

219. Salon C • Reading: Catherynne M. Valente

220. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Charles Allison

1:00 PM

221. Salon 3 • What Does Authenticity Look Like? • Steve Berman, Lisa Bradley, John Chu, John Lawson, John Wiswell

As the #ownvoices movement gathers steam, marginalized authors encounter demands for authenticity in their work from agents, editors, and readers who often have no idea what authenticity looks like. These authors often already pressure themselves, asking, “Am I #ownvoices enough?” But how else can they signal that their writing is for or about an underrepresented demographic? This panel of marginalized authors, led by Lisa M. Bradley, will discuss the concept of authenticity, the #ownvoices label, and how authors present and think about their work.

222. Salon 4 • From Seed to Story: How to Escape the Slush Pile • Martin Cahill, Scott Edelman, James Patrick Kelly, Benjamin C. Kinney, Kenneth Schneyer

As Ann Leckie explained in a 2013 blog post, even great writers will have stories rejected if they write 7,000 words around an underdeveloped idea. So what kind of research should go into a short story? How much plot and exposition are called for? What questions should the writer be asking and answering before they even start writing? Panelists will explore various methods by which a story seed can be nurtured into something publishable.

223. Salon A • A Hidden Knife: The Legacy of Fascism Embedded in Science Fiction • Keffy R.M. Kehrli, John P. Murphy, Nikhil Singh, Graham Sleight, Romie Stott

Early-20th-century pulp SF and futurism brought fascist ideas into the mainstream of speculative fiction. Since then, a great deal of storytelling, satire, and literary criticism have been invested in exorcising this demon from the genre. However, in the essay “Fascism & Science Fiction,” Aaron Santesso asks whether some of the core tropes of SF are themselves inherently fascist. Panelists will discuss this question, as well as possible remedies and counternarratives.
224. Salon B • Extremely Alternative Schooling • Rob Cameron, Theodora Goss, Tom Greene, Kathy Kitts, Tamara Vardomskaya
Considering the forces that have shaped Western-style formal education into what it is today, from primary school to university, what might it look like under different influences (such as other Earth cultures, or in fantastical settings), and how might it change in the future? What are some particularly interesting education systems in speculative fiction?

225. Salon C • Reading: Lisa (LJ) Cohen
226. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Paul Tremblay
227. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: Amal El-Mohtar, Max Gladstone
228. Autograph Table • Autographs: Rosemary Kirstein, Sarah Pinsker

1:30 PM
229. Salon C • Reading: Michael J. DeLuca
230. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Mike Allen

2:00 PM
231. Salon 3 • Carrying the Albatross • Vylar Kaftan, Hillary Monahan, Elsa Sjunneson-Henry, T.X. Watson
Even when depictions of mental illnesses in fiction are not inaccurate or offensive, their focus is often on the drama of acute episodes. What do these depictions miss about the mundane everyday experiences of living with, working around, or recovering from a mental illness? How might magic, cultural shifts, or futuristic technology change these lived realities or even provide opportunities for experience with mental illnesses to be seen as a useful strength?

232. Salon 4 • Writers’ Hobbies • Charles Allison, Stephen Graham Jones, Steven Popkes, Dianna Sanchez
Writers often talk about the ways their day jobs creep into their writing, but what about their hobbies? Our panelists will discuss the ways their secret and not-so-secret hobbies have influenced their work.
233. Salon A • Inside the Odyssey Writing Workshop • Jeanne Cavelos
Jeanne Cavelos describes Odyssey, an intensive six-week program for writers of fantasy, science fiction, and horror held each summer in Manchester, NH. Current students and graduates will add their own perspectives. The talk will cover the structure of the program, the work required, common struggles of writers, and the pros and cons of workshops.

234. Salon B • Found Family in SF • Anatoly Belilovsky, Rosemary Kirstein, Bart Leib, Sarah Pinsker, Catherynne M. Valente
Ideas of family are sensitive to societal conditions, so science fiction—a genre that frequently concerns itself with adjusted societal conditions—is a fruitful space for exploring the concept of found family. Panelists will discuss tropes and examples of familylike groups in SF (especially in confined situations such as starships, colonies, schools, and walled compounds) and the ways that these stories relate to the reality of found families for people isolated by present-day societal conditions.

235. Salon C • Reading: Gwynne Garfinkle

236. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Marc Abrahams

237. Abigail Adams • Brimstone Rhine in Concert • C.S.E. Cooney, Carlos Hernandez, Faye Ringel
Mythic music by singer-songwriter C.S.E. Cooney, with Faye Ringel on piano and Carlos Hernandez on ukulele and cajon.

238. Concierge Lounge • Kaffeeklatsches: John Langan, James A. Moore

239. Autograph Table • Autographs: F. Brett Cox, Jack Dann

2:30 PM

240. Salon C • Reading: Ken Schneyer

241. Sylvanus Thayer • Reading: Lisa Bradley

3:00 PM

242. Salon 3 • Readercon 30 Feedback Session • Rose Fox, Sioban Krzywcki, B. Diane Martin
Come share your thoughts on what we did well and what we can do better.
INDEX BY PARTICIPANT

Numbers correspond to the panel number as listed in this guide.

Please note that the final schedule may have changed since this guide was printed.

Abrahams, Marc: 89, 167, 183, 236
Allen, Mike: 7, 56, 212, 230
Allison, Charles: 7, 29, 124, 220, 232
Amundsen, Erik: 177, 204
Anderson, Chuck: 31, 188
Andrews, Scott H.: 56, 134
Arthen, Inanna: 20, 39, 163
Baylee, Eden: 194
Belilovsky, Anatoly: 8, 102, 154, 234
Berman, Judith: 8
Berman, Steve: 26, 175, 221
Bigelow, Susan: 76, 137
Bradley, Lisa: 38, 143, 221, 241
Brody, Ellen: 42
Brown, Christopher: 22, 54, 182
Bruce, Terri: 25, 163
Cahill, Martin: 28, 139, 181, 222
Cameron, Rob: 1, 30, 39, 213, 224
Campbell, Bill: 1, 13, 190
Cavelos, Jeanne: 197, 211, 233
Chu, John: 24, 50, 154, 203, 221
Cisco, Michael: 155, 211
Clark, Phenderson Djéli: 30, 170
Clarke, Neil: 56, 98, 154
Claybourne, Zig Zag: 45, 49, 126, 159
Clute, John: 48, 94, 158, 193, 202
Cohen, Lisa (LJ): 25, 37, 225
Cooney, C.S.E.: 48, 78, 99, 139, 167, 200, 237
Corbin, Andrea Martinez: 21, 186, 200
Cox, F. Brett: 22, 153, 182, 239
Crowley, John: 63, 68, 159, 174, 197
D’Ammassa, Don: 173
Daniels, Gillian: 47, 66, 211
Dann, Jack: 23, 46, 137, 156, 239
Datlow, Ellen: 33, 56, 131, 169
Defendini, Pablo: 37, 58, 134, 154
DeGraff, David: 43, 183
DeLuca, Michael J.: 1, 134, 229
Dolkart, N.S.: 101, 141, 177, 186
Donahue, Kielan: 115
Duchamp, L. Timmel: 58, 195
Due, Tananarive: 1, 13, 31, 82, 130, 149, 166, 172, 201
Edelman, Scott: 160, 169, 222
El-Mohtar, Amal: 113, 142, 145, 164, 227
Elison, Meg: 32, 73, 89, 104, 193, 214
Emrys, Ruthanna: 66, 123, 178, 184
Feeley, Gregory: 68, 174
Files, Gemma: 5, 33, 47, 141, 151, 198
Ford, Jeffrey: 33, 59, 152, 163
Fox, Rose: 67, 146, 167, 181, 242
Freund, Jim: 61, 137, 174
Garfinkle, Gwynne: 47, 214, 235
Garriepy, Cameron: 194
Garrott, Lila: 51, 94
Gervais, Jean-Philippe: 51, 93
Gerwel, Chris: 48, 68, 200
Gilman, Carolyn Ives: 68, 124, 173
Gilman, Greer: 41, 57, 145, 186
Gladstone, Max: 142, 150, 164, 177, 227
Gorinsky, Liz: 37, 55, 105
Goss, Theodora: 23, 52, 131, 147, 191, 224
Greene, Tom: 32, 224
Grossman, Austin: 10, 55, 153
Gwaltney, Jack: 194
Habershaw, Auston: 137, 179
Hand, Elizabeth: 22, 44, 48, 125, 148, 152, 202
Haringa, Jack: 143, 162
Haskins, Maria: 194
Hecht, Jeff: 205, 212
Hernandez, Carlos: 38, 78, 113, 237
Heuler, Karen: 7, 77, 137
Horn, JD: 88, 175, 182
Huff, Crystal: 213
Iriarte, Jose: 38, 137, 144, 199, 203
Isaak, Elaine: 25, 92, 136, 177
Jablokov, Alexander: 3, 32, 173, 208
Janssen, Victoria: 52, 136
Jasper, Josh: 39, 58, 155
Jones, Stephen Graham: 2, 33, 69, 120, 137, 158, 171, 201, 232
Kaftan, Vylar: 34, 46, 143, 170, 175, 217, 231
Kashina, Anna: 81, 102, 114, 124, 180, 183, 191, 202
Kayembe, Kathleen: 194
Kehrli, Keffy: 76, 116, 137, 223
Kelly, James Patrick: 62, 80, 121, 165, 222
Kestenbaum, Randee Dawn: 25, 126, 138
Killheffer, Robert: 29, 40, 76
King, M.J.: 194
Kinney, Benjamin: 80, 96, 178, 222
Kirstein, Rosemary: 83, 105, 228, 234
Kirton, Bill: 194
Kitts, Kathy: 4, 163, 183, 192, 224
Krasnoff, Barbara: 61, 81, 94, 138, 161, 202
Kressel, Matthew: 60, 113, 123, 213
Krzywicki, Sioban: 22, 67, 111, 190, 242
Kuznia, Yanni: 37, 46, 72
Langan, John: 11, 33, 65, 94, 162, 187, 238
Lawson, John: 122, 151, 221
Leib, Bart: 37, 137, 234
LeMay, Jim: 31, 188, 213
Levinson, Paul: 66, 134, 209, 218
Lingen, Marissa: 32, 76, 127, 165, 200
Little Badger, Darcie: 2, 24, 143, 162, 175
Luhrs, Natalie: 113
Manley, Kip: 66
Martin, B. Diane: 75, 242
Martine, Arkady: 9, 47, 94, 106, 152, 165
Maruyama, Kate: 23, 47, 172
McCaffrey, John: 194
Meynard, Yves: 136
Miller, Chelsea: 29, 58, 124, 190
Miller, Heath: 167, 181
Mohanraj, Mary Anne: 30, 56, 87, 98, 190, 203
Monahan, Hillary: 173, 211, 231
Mondal, Mimi: 18, 203
Moore, James: 173, 216, 238
Moraine, Sunny: 49, 108
Muneshwar, Ian: 49, 187
Murphy, John: 95, 135, 178, 207, 223
Nepveu, Kate: 8, 24, 35, 136, 176, 191
Nevins, Jess: 29, 123, 187, 211
Newman, Miriam: 7, 19, 49, 72, 118
O’Neil, John: 123, 178
Older, Malka: 14, 53, 198, 217
Parker, Michelle: 168
Penelope, L.: 13, 65, 90, 126
Pinsker, Sarah: 100, 181, 207, 228, 234
Popkes, Steven: 232
Redick, Robert V. S.: 7
Ringel, Faye: 13, 29, 237
Rios, Julia: 38, 145, 215
Roy, Lauren: 12, 163, 213
Sabalauskas, Mark: 157
Sanchez, Dianna: 25, 71, 129, 185, 218, 232
Sandbrook, Victoria: 22, 46, 107, 144, 193
Schaller, Eric: 15, 165
Schneier, Ken: 23, 222, 240
Sconiers, Nicole D.: 58, 187
Shaw, David: 8, 75, 165
Shaw, Vivian: 91, 106, 119, 137, 183
Singh, Nikhil: 30, 223
Singh, Vandana: 24, 68, 119, 132, 203
Sjgunneson-Henry, Elsa: 151, 187, 190, 214, 231
Sleight, Graham: 32, 40, 112, 193, 223
Smith, Farah Rose: 117, 144
Smith, Sarah: 14, 36
Smith, Sherwood: 17, 174
Stevens, E.J.: 47, 90
Stott, Romie: 123, 134, 145, 223
Swanwick, Michael: 149, 186
Taaffe, Sonya: 2, 64, 145, 167, 200, 214
Tan, Cecilia: 62, 76, 136, 152
Taylor, Terence: 39, 46, 65, 138
teri.zin: 2, 13, 128, 144, 162, 214
Tesla, Vinnie: 174
Townsend, Tracy: 25, 49, 70, 135, 177, 191
Tremblay, Paul: 2, 33, 120, 162, 171, 226
Turnbull, Cadwell: 1, 14, 24, 73, 212
Vardomskaya, Tamara: 8, 84, 102, 154, 224
Vedeler, Torger: 232
Verlager, Kestrell: 113, 151
Vess, Charles: 85
Vourvoulias, Sabrina: 38, 55, 103, 126, 152, 186
Wagner, Emily: 19, 27, 67, 118, 196
Waldrop, Howard: 31, 48, 66, 182, 189, 208
Walrath, Holly: 23, 86, 175
Watson, T.X.: 14, 55, 212, 231
Weimer, Paul: 126
Wessells, Henry: 74, 193
Williams, Sheila: 56, 130, 143
Williams, Walt: 124, 194, 210
Wiswell, John: 6, 39, 135, 221
Wolfe, Navah: 43, 135
Wood, R.B.: 194
Con Suite
8th Floor Presidential Suite (Room 863)
Gender Neutral Bathrooms

Kaffeeklatsches
Concierge Lounge (9th Floor)
Seating is limited!
Sign up in advance at Information.

Here there be dragons
(bathrooms)

Elevators
Hotel Registration
Hotel Restaurant
Gender Neutral Bathroom
(located in Hotel Gym)
Want to use the mobile guide?
Scan this QR code with your smartphone’s barcode app, or go to http://readercon.net/guide/guide.htm

Our Code of Conduct is printed in the Souvenir Book, or you can always find it at readercon.org/CoC.

Call (617) 544-0966 to reach Readercon’s safety team any time during the convention. You can also send email, either during or after the convention, to safety@readercon.org.

For more on Readercon’s safety policies and procedures, please see readercon.org/safety.

---

Hours

Registration: Friday 10 AM to 8 PM
Saturday 9 AM to 6 PM
Sunday 9 AM to 1 PM

Information: Friday 10 AM to 9 PM
Saturday 9 AM to 6 PM
Sunday 9 AM to 1 PM

Con Suite: Friday 10 AM to midnight
Saturday 8:30 AM to midnight
Sunday 8:30 AM to 3 PM

Bookshop: Friday 3 PM to 7 PM
Saturday 10 AM to 6 PM
Sunday 10 AM to 2:00 PM

Bake Sale: Saturday 9:30 AM to 12:30 PM
(or until sold out)

Blood Drive: Saturday 9 AM to 2:30 PM
Sign up to donate on Friday and Saturday near the Information desk.